Dear Dr. Powell:

Thank you for your recent letter in which you inquired of our interest in your manuscript, "Comparative Aesthetics: A Workbook."

Our press has not developed a line of textbook publishing, although now and then a book is adopted by an instructor for a specific class. We do not have the distribution capabilities necessary for textbook publication. I regret that we cannot ask to review your manuscript for possible publication, but I do hope that you will find a suitable publisher soon. I should think your best bet would be with commercial publishers, who have all the resources of contact and distribution for textbook publication.

With all best wishes.

Sincerely,

Arthur J. Pflughaupt
